A New Naval Terror.

A new acquisition to England's navy was launched recently and christened the Vulcar. She is designed as a twin screw torpedo depot ship, but is a fast, protected cruiser and a formidable fighting craft as well, and repre sents an entirely novel type. The construc tion of the Vulcan was begun on June 16, 1888. She is of 6,620 tons displacementlarger, in short, than any of the large In-dian troop ships and three times as large as many a crusier. She is built of steel, her hull alone weighing 3,170 tons, and her principal measurements are as follows: Length, 350 feet; beam, 68 feet; mean draught, 22 feet. The vertical keel is of an unusually heavy and substantial character and is 3 feet 6 inches high. The cast steel U-shaped sternpost is extra strong, weighing five tons. The vessel is divided into numer ous water-tight compartments, and is pro-tected by a continuous steel deck 6 inches thick in the slope and 2½ inches elsewhere. The engines are of the triple expansion type and will give a collective indicated horse-power under forced draught of 12,000. They will drive the ship at a speed of 20 knots (23 miles) and 18 knots (207 miles) at sea. There will be storage for 1,000 tons of coal, an amount sufficient for 3,000 miles steaming at 18 kno's an hour. She will have a balance rudder similar to that fitted to the Spanish cruiser Reina Regenti and to the Inman steamer City of New York. This will able the new war ship to turn a com

As a torpedo-depot ship she will be admirably adapted for the work. She will be a floating factory, full of forges and workshops for the repair of torpedo boats and torpedoes. She will carry an immense supplied to recorded and processing in the standard and the shades of the standard and the shades of the standard and the shades of the sh ply of torpedoes, submarine mines and all the necessary gear for submarine work on a large scale, and she will also have upon her decks a small flotilia, probably eight in number, of second class torpedo boats of the largest siz. Toese she will be able to hoist overboard and dispatch in all directions at a few minutes' notice. The Vulcan will also have a torpedo armament of her own, con-

The quick-firing armament will be the most powerful of any ship in the world. It will enable her to discharge on each broadside a storm of from 80 to 150 projectiles a minute; and should she ever be attacked by unar mored cruisers or torpedo boats, she would be able to give them a warm reception.

A TERBOR OF A HORSE.-There was an unusuelly large attendance at Saturday afternoon's performance of Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show, at Paris. A large proportion of those present had been attracted by the announcement that the equestrian ski l of Colonel Cody's cowboys was to be put to the test of riding a vicious French horse, of which they knew nothing whatsoever. Certain Parisian gentlemen, who fancied that the exhibition of bucking borses was conducted with animals trained to display a wildness they had long before had taken out out of them, laid heavy wages with other members of the Jockey Club, who had confidence in the genuineness of the bucking horse act, that they could pro-duce an animal which the cowboys could not saddle, bridle or ride in the time usually devoted to that portion of the performance. The horse selected was Le Retif, a powerful Steam Flooring & Planing Mill black stallion, seventeen hands high, belonging to M. Talllard, that had acquired a well merited reputation for viciousness by killing two men who attempted to break Dealers in

He bad not gone far before a lasso thrown by Tony Esquival settled around his neck and this novel experience was such a sur-prise that he offered no serious resistance to being saddled and bridled. Then he apparrealized the situation, and while the usual bucking business was progressing he made things particularly lively for those that were holding him. After five or six of the bronchos had been ridden Le Retif was led for ward, and before he knew what was to be done with him Jim the Kid, a Wyoming cowboy, was on his back. For a few min-utes Le Retif showed that in the art of bucking he had nothing to learn from his Ameri
